

Brown Trial Will Probably Continue Through Next Week

The case of S. B. Brown, charged with falsifying the records of the Central Bank of Wilcox, is still on trial in the superior court, at Tombstone and from all accounts will not be concluded for another week.

Yesterday M. Tellashe, chief counsel for the Southern Pacific, and J. Cuttingham, secretary of the Houston & Eastern Railroad, from Houston, Tex., were on the witness stand. They testified that certain bonds that Brown was carrying as security in the bank were worthless.

Herbert Loudemilk, receiver for the bank, was also on the stand and identified certain books of the bank as being the records that he found in the bank when he took it over as receiver.

Auditor Brown, of the county attorney's office, has not been placed on the stand but it is expected that he will take the witness chair when court convenes on Monday morning.

They predict that Tsing Tao, converted by the Germans into a model city, with broad, shaded streets, and substantial buildings of European architecture, will become a rival of Shanghai and Peking, both for business and tourist travel.

VALENTINO ARRESTED

against Valentino was reached by the district attorney after considerable deliberation, he said, and following several consultations with his staff. The situation is unusual if not unique, in California court proceedings, in that the prosecution has been instituted in a county where no overt act of the alleged felony took place.

The district attorney's contention is that the laws of California have been violated by the marriage at Mexicali and subsequent residence in Riverside county, and that action could be undertaken in any part of the state.

It was brought out in the complaint that Valentino is a resident of Los Angeles county and that the interlocutory decree granted his first wife was issued here. McClelland said he thought these might turn out to be important points in the case.

The district attorney said he also believed the question might be raised of whether a marriage outside the county could be bigamous under the California code. The code provides that the marriage "outside the state" of a person having a husband or wife living is bigamous, providing there should be subsequent residence within the state of the parties to such marriage.

CHICAGO, May 20.—(By The Associated Press) — Winifred Hudnut, whose marriage to Rodolph Valentino in Mexicali, Mexico, has resulted in charges of bigamy against the moving picture star, reached Chicago today, enroute to her home in New York with a pledge of love from Valentino on her lips and tears in her eyes when she heard the latest news of the screen idol.

All the way on her long trip from the west she steadfastly refused to discuss the case with scores of newspaper reporters who boarded the train at almost every station or who were already on it when it started, but at the last moment, when someone suggested that her silence might result in misjudgment of Valentino and asked her if she loved him, her lips formed one word—"forever." Then she resumed her attitude of silence.

Persons on her train said she told them she would "never, never leave Rodolph," and planned to return to him, but Miss Hudnut herself would say nothing to this effect to reporters.

Miss Hudnut sent Valentino nine telegrams and a special delivery letter during the trip here. She received 12 telegrams from him. All were couched in terms of endearment, such phrases as "bushels of love," "don't worry, everything will be all right," "love you so much," "God take care of you," and "your darling sweetheart," predominated in the words sent and received by her. To several she signed the word "bambi."

no" instead of her name. It is Italian for "sweetheart."

Miss Hudnut's only companion was a Pekingese dog, which rode in the baggage car. Traveling under the name of "Winifred Shaughnessy," she rode in an ordinary lower berth, but made no attempt to conceal her identity when reporters asked her if she was "Mrs. Valentino."

The trip east literally was a story without words, for, while Miss Hudnut refused to make anything that could be called a formal statement, her every move was carefully watched by fellow passengers who soon learned her identity.

mission to accompany them overlaid as far as Sentinel, near where the defendant claimed to have a broken down automobile. This request was granted.

Johnson said he and his wife had planned traveling via the Phoenix, Blythe and Mesquite route to Los Angeles, but that Hadley talked them out of it by showing them a purported photograph of impassable road conditions on that route.

The witness then related the story of starting on the trip on November 15, the shooting, the carrying of the first news of the murder to Stovall, and the pursuit of the assailant.

"What did you first say to the defendant after he had been apprehended and brought before you?" asked Deputy Prosecutor Mathews of the witness.

"I said: 'You scoundrel, why didn't you finish me along with my wife instead of letting me live to suffer?'" was the reply of Johnson.

The examination of the witness by the defense will be taken up on Monday morning.

CONFERENCE ON RATES

ed is some commodities some months ago, more particularly on such basic commodities as may be found necessary to speed industrial betterment. The whole railroad problem was discussed, and difficulties of railroad management under existing conditions were presented. The presidents voiced their unanimous desire to make the fullest contributions possible to restore and maintain prosperity.

"Various aspects of the railroad problem were discussed particularly in connection with the new or repaired equipment when normal business is restored. The president made it clear he was attempting none of the duties of rate making or rate recommendations, but he felt that much could be accomplished by conference, and that helpful results must accompany a full co-operation between the railroad heads and a government body charged with the regulation of rates. The executives voted to have a committee named from their membership to take up the problem and recommend what action could be taken."

BACKS FORMER CHARGE

New York early the following week in connection with the payment of a "balance" due for their legal services.

"I enclose herewith copy of the letter setting forth the contract you made of August 4, 1911," with Mr. Felder, for his services and mine," the letter added. "You will observe that there was a balance due of $25,000 when you were committed. I also hand you a copy of a paper you handed me in the prison some time after that time, and I have today asked Mr. Daugherty to send to you by express the papers which I got from Harry and others from time to time, which you spoke to me about."

The reference to "Harry" in the letter, Caraway said in submitting the copy, was to Harry Morse, son of the shipbuilder.

The contract specified that Daugherty was to receive a "retainer" of $5000, and actual expenses "incurred by him in looking after your matters. Expenses not to exceed $1000."

Felder, however, according to the contract, was to pay his own expenses. "You are to direct, counsel heretofore employed," the copy submitted by Caraway continued, "to withdraw your appeal in the habeas corpus proceedings heretofore instituted. We are to receive, in the event we secure an unconditional pardon or commutation, for you, the sum of $25,000, which is to be in full compensation for services rendered in connection with your application for pardon. We are to receive 25 per cent of whatever sums we recover by compromise or litigation in the matter of the Metropolitan Steamship company."

After the discussion concerning the letter and contract, Caraway informed the senate he was in possession of some other documents which "Daugherty won't love," and promised to make them public unless the attorney general vigorously presses the war fraud investigations and prosecutions by going into court himself. The Arkansas senator declared that if Daugherty was joking when he made the "threat" about going into court personally, he had the opportunity now to make good. He added that he would give the attorney general a little time "to make good," and advised the senate that it had not heard the end of the case.
